

Confined and Unconfined Spaces

Can you spot the difference?

Sometimes, it can be hard to tell a confined space from a regular work location. Make sure you know how to identify them.

Most confined spaces have common identifiers

Barricaded entry

Signage

Entry lock systems

Difficult access

Loud and constant noise

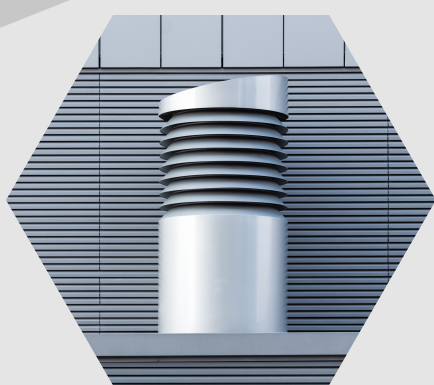

Contrasting temperatures

Most unconfined spaces have common identifiers, too

Have easy entry points

Have adequate ventilation

Have sufficient lighting

Restricted spaces are similar to confined spaces, but they're not the same.

Restricted spaces' main hazards are difficult entries. They don't contain poor ventilation or dangerous atmosphere.

Keep an eye out and know your work locations.

If they have confined space identifiers, always make sure you take the proper precautions before you enter.
